Repeals

The Indian Independence Act, 1947, and the Government of India Act, 1935, together with all enactments amending or supplementing the latter Act, but not including the Abolition of Privy Council Jurisdiction Act, 1949, are hereby repealed.

A.K. Gopalan Case (1950)

SC contented that there was no violation of Fundamental Rights enshrined in Articles 13, 19, 21 and 22 under the provisions of the Preventive Detention Act, if the detention was as per the procedure established by law. Here, the SC took a narrow view of Article 21.

Shankari Prasad Case (1951)

This case dealt with the amendability of Fundamental Rights (the First Amendment's validity was challenged). The SC contented that the Parliament's power to amend under Article 368 also includes the power to amend the Fundamental Rights guaranteed in Part III of the Constitution.

Berubari Union case (1960)

This case was regarding the Parliament's power to transfer the territory of Berubai to Pakistan. The Supreme Court examined Article 3 in detail and held that the Parliament cannot make laws under this article in order to execute the Nehru-Noon agreement. Hence, the 9th Amendment Act was passed to enforce the agreement.

Golaknath case (1967)

The questions in this case were whether amendment is a law; and whether Fundamental Rights can be amended or not. SC contented that Fundamental Rights are not amenable to the Parliamentary restriction as stated in Article 13, and that to amend the Fundamental rights a new Constituent Assembly would be required. Also stated that Article 368 gives the procedure to amend the Constitution but does not confer on Parliament the power to amend the Constitution.

Kesavananda Bharati case (1973)

This judgement defined the basic structure of the Constitution. The SC held that although no part of the Constitution, including Fundamental Rights, was beyond the Parliament's amending power, the 'basic structure of the Constitution could not be abrogated even by a constitutional amendment.' This is the basis in Indian law in which the judiciary can strike down any amendment passed by Parliament that is in conflict with the basic structure of the Constitution.

Indira Nehru Gandhi v. Raj Narain case (1975)

The SC applied the theory of basic structure and struck down Clause(4) of article 329-A, which was inserted by the 39th Amendment in 1975 on the grounds that it was beyond the Parliament's amending power as it destroyed the Constitution's basic features.

Maneka Gandhi case (1978)

A main issue in this case was whether the right to go abroad is a part of the Right to Personal Liberty under Article 21. The SC held that it is included in the Right to Personal Liberty. The SC also ruled that the mere existence of an enabling law was not enough to restrain personal liberty. Such a law must also be 'just, fair and reasonable.'

Minerva Mills case (1980)

This case again strengthens the Basic Structure doctrine. The judgement struck down 2 changes made to the Constitution by the 42nd Amendment Act 1976, declaring them to be violative of the basic structure. The judgement makes it clear that the Constitution, and not the Parliament is supreme.

Waman Rao Case (1981)

The SC again reiterated the Basic Structure doctrine. It also drew a line of demarcation as April 24th, 1973 i.e., the date of the Kesavananda Bharati judgement, and held that it should not be applied retrospectively to reopen the validity of any amendment to the Constitution which took place prior to that date.

Shah Bano Begum case (1985)

Milestone case for Muslim women's fight for rights. The SC upheld the right to alimony for a Muslim woman and said that the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is applicable to all citizens irrespective of their religion. This set off a political controversy and the government of the day overturned this judgement by passing the Muslim Women (Protection on Divorce Act), 1986, according to which alimony need be given only during the iddat period (in tune with the Muslim personal law).

MC Mehta and Union Of India (1986)

This case dealt with 3 issues: Scope of Article 32; rule of Absolute Liability or Rylands vs Fletcher to be followed; issue of compensation. SC held that its power under Article 32 is not restricted to preventive measures, but also remedial measures when rights are violated. It also held that in the case of industries engaged in hazardous or inherently dangerous activities, Absolute Liability was to be followed. Finally, it also said that the amount of compensation must be correlated to the magnitude and capacity of the industry so that it will be a deterrent.

Indra Sawhney and Union of India (1992)

SC examined the scope and extent of Article 16(4), which provides for the reservation of jobs in favour of backward classes. It upheld the constitutional validity of 27% reservation for the OBCs with certain conditions (like creamy layer exclusion, no reservation in promotion, total reserved quota should not exceed 50%, etc.)

S. R. Bommai case (1994)

This case dealt with sexual harassment at the workplace. In the judgement, the SC gave a set of guidelines for employers as well as other responsible persons or institutions to immediately ensure the prevention of sexual harassment. These are called 'Vishaka Guidelines'.

These were to be considered law until appropriate legislation was enacted.

Samatha and State of Andhra Pradesh (1997)

This judgement nullified all mining leases granted by the Andhra Pradesh State government in the Scheduled areas and asked it to stop all mining operations. It declared that forest land, tribal land, and government land in scheduled areas could not be leased to private companies or non-tribal for industrial operations. Such activity is only permissible to a government undertaking and tribal people.

Lily Thomas v Union of India (2000)

Here, the SC held that the second marriage of a Hindu man without divorcing the first wife, even if the man had converted to Islam, is void unless the first marriage had been dissolved according to the Hindu Marriage Act.

I.R Coelho and State of Tamil Nadu 2007

This judgement held that if a law is included in the 9th Schedule of the Indian Constitution, it can still be examined and confronted in court. The 9th Schedule of the Indian Constitution contains a list of acts and laws which cannot be challenged in a court of law. The Waman Rao ruling ensured that acts and laws mentioned in the IX schedule till 24 April 1973, shall not be changed or challenged, but any attempt to amend or add more acts to that schedule will suffer close inspection and examination by the judiciary system.

Pedophilia case (2011)

The SC restored the conviction and sentence of 6-year (RI) rigorous imprisonment imposed on 2 UK nationals who were acquitted by the Bombay High Court in a paedophilia case. The court said that 'the sexual abuse of children is one of the most heinous crimes.'

Aruna Shanbaug Case (2011)

The SC ruled that individuals had a right to die with dignity, allowing passive euthanasia with guidelines. The need to reform India's laws on euthanasia was triggered by the tragic case of Aruna Shanbaug who lay in a vegetative state (blind, paralysed and deaf) for 42 years.

NOTA judgement (2013)

This judgement introduced the NOTA (None-Of-The-Above) option for Indian voters.

Lily Thomas and Union Of India (2013)

The SC ruled that any MLA, MLC or MP who was found guilty of a crime and given a minimum of 2 year imprisonment would cease to be a member of the House with immediate effect.

Nirbhaya Case (2014)

Introduction of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013 and definition of rape under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012, the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Code of Criminal Procedures, 1973.

National Legal Services Authority and Union of India (2014)

This case resulted in the recognition of transgender persons as a third gender. The SC also instructed the government to treat them as minorities and expand the reservations in education, jobs, education, etc.

Triple Talaq Judgement (2016)

The SC outlawed the backward practice of instant 'triple talaq', which permitted Muslim men to unilaterally end their marriages by uttering the word 'talaq' three times without making any provision for maintenance or alimony. Read about the Triple Talaq Bill, 2019.

Right To Privacy (2017)

The SC declared the right to privacy as a Fundamental Right protected under the Indian Constitution.

Repealing Section 377 (2018)

The SC ruled that Section 377 was unconstitutional 'in so far as it criminalises consensual sexual conduct between adults of the same sex.'

L Chandra Kumar Case (1997)

The SC ruled that the power of judicial review vested in the Supreme Court and High Courts by Articles 32 (Right to Constitutional Remedies) and 226 respectively is a part of the basic structure of the Constitution.

Puttuswamy Case (2017)

This SC judgement protects individual rights against the invasion of one's privacy.

Habeas Corpus Case (1976)

A much-criticised judgement of the SC, in which the majority ruling went against individual freedom and seemed to favour the state.

Justice Khanna's dissent is also well-known.

Romesh Thapar Case (1950)

Here, the SC held that the freedom of speech and expression includes freedom of propagation of ideas that can only be ensured by circulation.

Bijoe Emmanuel v State of Kerala 1986

There must be a nexus between the classification and the object of the Act which makes the classification

M.R. Balaji v State of Mysore 1962

A special provision of reservation should be less than 50%. Caste can be one of the criteria with other criteria such as place of habitation, poverty, etc. to determine backwardness but caste cannot be the sole factor

Indira Sawhney v Union of India 1993

Reservations in promotion not permissible; diluted by Article 16(4A) via 77th Amendment Creamy layer test not applicable to SC/STs

Reservation beyond 50% not permissible Caste is a predominant test for assessing backwardness Carry-forward rule for vacancies not permissible. Diluted by Article 16(4B) via 81st Amendment Upheld 27% reservation for OBCs in public offices

Ajit Singh v State of Punjab 1999

Getting reservation in promotion does not grant consequential seniority for SC/ST candidates; 'Catch up rule' was laid down under which senior general candidates who were promoted after SC/ST candidates would regain their seniority over SC/ST candidates promoted; Diluted by addition of a clause 'with consequential seniority' in Article 16(4A) via 85th Amendment

M. Nagaraj v Union of India 2006

Reservation in promotion can be allowed if three tests factors are shown: a) Demonstrate backwardness b) Demonstrate inadequacy of representation c) Overall efficiency of the administration should not get compromised Held per incuriam (in Jarnail Singg v Lachmi Narain Gupta) to the extent that it asks for demonstrating backwardness for SC/STs as it goes against Indira Sawhney finding that there need not be shown any data for backwardness for SC/STs

Jarnail Singg v Lachmi Narain Gupta 2018

Holds M Nagaraj per incuriam to the extent it asks for data to demonstrate backwardness of SC/STs

Ashok Thakur v Union of India 2008

"Caste" is often used interchangeably with 'class' and can be called as the basic unit in social stratification. Creamy layer principle cannot be applied to STs and SCs, as they are a separate backward class by themselves. The question was restricted to whether Article 15(5), insofar as it applied to State institutions, violated the basic structure. That part of Article 15(5) which referred to private, unaided educational institutions was excluded from the scope of the enquiry. Court upheld the application of the provision to State institutions. Upheld 27% quota for OBCs in educational institutions

State of Madras v Champakam Dorairajan 1951

Admission to medical and engineering colleges in Madras in a proportion, based upon caste and religion, were challenged. Court rejected the argument that A.46 could be used to provide reservations since Directive Principles could not go against Fundamental Rights of citizens. Diluted by addition of Article 15(4) via the 1st Amendment 1951.

Mohini Jain v State of Karnataka 1992

There is a fundamental right to education at all levels (primary, secondary and higher) and that the state was under a constitutional mandate to provide educational institutions at all those levels. The Court held that if government seats are filled by charging X amount, it is the state's responsibility to ensure that all other institutions that are set up with government permission and have obtained recognition from the government, also charge the same amount as fees.

Unni Krishnan J.P. v. State of Andhra Pradesh 1993

Reconsidered Mohini Jain. Held that the right to education only extends to children up to the age of 14 years. Private institutions had a right under Article 19(1)(g) that entitled them to complete autonomy. Profit making was essential for them to flourish. However, laid down certain restrictions/conditions with respect to fees charged by private educational institutions. These conditions included the fees to be charged and the seat-sharing ratio between the government and private institutions.

TMA Pai v State of Karnataka 2002

Setting up of an educational institution would be an 'occupation' under Article 19(1)(g). The scheme framed by Unni Krishnan was illegal and unconstitutional. Overruled Unni Krishnan to that extent. State cannot regulate the admission policies of unaided educational institutions run by minorities. However, some rules can be prescribed to maintain academic standards. Minority institutions will have to admit to a reasonable extent non-minority students in their institutions.

Islamic Academy of Education v. State of Karnataka 2003

Held that the state can provide reservation in favour of financially or socially backward sections of society. In order to ensure transparency in admission and fee structure, the Court resorted to the setting up of committees to give effect to the judgment in TMA Pai.

P.A Inamdar v State of Maharashtra

The bench was set up to clarify a) the ratio of TMA Pai (11 judge bench verdict) b) to examine the correctness of Islamic Academy Case. Court held that setting up of committees to fix fee structure, seats, etc. in private educational institutions ran contrary to the judgment in TMA Pai. Hence overruled Islamic Academy to that extent. State can't impose its reservation policy on minority and non-minority unaided private colleges, including professional colleges. Incorporation of Article 15(5) via the 93rd Amendment diluted the ratio of PA Inamdar and TMA Pai. State could now provide 'by law' reservations in state as well private (aided or unaided) educational institutions. However, minority educational institutions were left out

L. Chandra Kumar v UOI

Judicial review is a part of the basic structure of the Constitution. Held 323A Clause 2(d) and 323B Clause 3(d) struck down as it affected powers of High Court of judicial review

Waman Rao v Union of India 1981

All laws put under the 9th Schedule of the Constitution before the date of Kesavananda Bharti's decision i.e. April 24th, 1973 will be immune from judicial review. All laws put under the 9th Schedule after Keshvananda Bharti will be open to challenge on the ground of violation of basic structure doctrine.

I.R Coelho v State of Tamil Nadu 2007

Twofold test laid down to determine the validity of any law put under the 9th Schedule: a) Whether the law violates Fundamental Rights? b) Whether the violation also results in violation of the basic structure of the Constitution? If yes, the law will be struck down. Held some fundamental rights to be part of the basic structure of the Constitution but stopped short of holding all fundamental rights to be part of the basic structure.

P Rathinam v UOI 1994

S. 309 of IPC is a cruel and irrational provision, and it may result in punishing a person again (doubly) who has suffered agony and would also be suffering ignominy because of his failure to commit suicide. Consequently, it was held that the section was violative of Article 21, hence unconstitutional. However, the bench did not favour euthanasia.

Gian Kaur v State of Punjab 1996

"Right to life" under Article 21 is inherently inconsistent with the "right to die" as is "death" with "life". In furtherance, the right to life, which includes right to live with human dignity, would mean the existence of such a right up to the natural end of life. It may further include "death with dignity" but such existence should not be confused with unnatural extinction of life curtailing natural span of life. Overruled P. Rathinam v UOI.

Aruna Shanbaug v UOI 2011

The SC issued a set of broad guidelines legalizing passive euthanasia in India. It held that the decision to withdraw treatment, nutrition, or the decision to discontinue life support must be taken by parents, spouse, or other close relatives, or in the absence of them, by a "next friend". This decision requires approval from the concerned High Court.

Common Cause v UOI 2018

Right to die with dignity is a fundamental right. Passive euthanasia is permissible, not active euthanasia. The difference between 'active' and passive euthanasia is that in active euthanasia something is done to end the patient's life while in passive euthanasia, something is not done that would have preserved the patient's life. Court also upheld the validity of a living will.

Living will is a written document that allows a patient to give explicit instructions in advance about the medical treatment to be administered when he or she is terminally ill or no longer able to express informed consent. It includes authorizing their families to switch off life support in case a medical board declared that they were beyond medical help. (Mental Healthcare Act under S. 115 decriminalizes suicide)

Kihoto Hollohan v Zachillu 1992

Held para 7 of the 10th Schedule (inserted by 52nd Amendment 1985) of the Constitution as ultra vires as it excluded judicial review.

Indira Nehru Gandhi v Raj Narain 1975

Held 39th Amendment (A.329A) as unconstitutional and violative of basic structure.

People's Union for Democratic Rights v UOI 1982

Where a person provides labour or service to another for remuneration which is less than the minimum wage, the labour or service provided by him clearly falls within the scope and ambit of the words 'forced labour' under Article 23

Santosh Kumar v Secretary, Ministry of HRD 1995

Teaching of Sanskrit alone as an elective subject in CBSE can in no way be regarded as against secularism. Indeed, our Constitution requires giving of fillip to Sanskrit because of what has been stated in Article 351, in which while dealing with the duty of the Union to promote the spread of Hindi it has been provided that it would draw, whenever necessary or desirable, for its vocabulary, primarily on Sanskrit. Encouragement to Sanskrit is also necessary because of it being one of the languages included in the Eighth Schedule.

Rev. Stanislaus v State of M.P 1977

The right to propagate religion under Article 25 does not include the right to convert by fraud or deceit or allurement and therefore upheld the constitutional validity of the laws enacted by Madhya Pradesh and Orissa legislatures prohibiting conversion by force, fraud or allurement.

Association for Democratic Reforms v. Union of India 2002

Court mandated the disclosure of information relating to criminal antecedents, educational qualification, and personal assets of a candidate contesting elections.

Lok Prahari v UOI 2018

Centre directed to amend the rules as well as the disclosure form filed by candidates along with their nomination papers, to include the sources of their income, and those of their spouses and dependants and disclosure of government contracts where candidates or their associates have direct or indirect interests.

Lily Thomas v UOI 2013

S. 8(4) of the Representation of People Act, 1951 was prospectively (i.e. from the date of the decision) struck down as unconstitutional being beyond the legislative competence of the Parliament. Section 8(4) provided that if a MP or a MLA has been convicted of a criminal offence, such MP or MLA can continue to remain, and discharge his or her duties as, a member of the House, if within three months of the conviction, he or she has filed an appeal or a revision against such conviction. This protection is no more available to MP's and MLA's and thus on conviction they lose their seat.

Abhiram Singh v C.D. Commachen 2017v

Section 123 (3) of the Act prohibits any candidate, his agent, or any person consented by such candidate or his agent, from soliciting votes, or discouraging voters against voting for a rival candidate, on grounds of religion, race, caste, community or language, by declaring such conduct as a 'corrupt practice'. The court has read this provision to disallow any reference to the religion, race, caste, community or language, of the candidate, or of his rivals, or of the voters to secure votes, or prejudice the electorate against a rival in an election

Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay v UOI 2018

MP's or MLA's cannot be barred from practising in courts. Legislators cannot be styled or characterized as full-time salaried employees for there is no relationship of employer and employee. (Bar Council of India Rules prohibit an advocate from being a full time salaried employee of any person, government, firm, corporation or concern, so long as he continues to practice.)

Public Interest Foundation v UOI 2018

Politicians cannot be barred from contesting elections on framing of charges. Guidelines issued to prevent criminalisation of politics: First, while filing their nominations, the candidates must declare if there are pending criminal cases against them in courts. Second, political parties are also responsible for putting up details of criminal cases filed against their candidates on their websites. Third, Parliament must legislate on the matter to ensure that candidates with criminal antecedents do not enter public life or become lawmakers.

Sarla Mudgal v UOI 1995

Emphasized on the need for a Uniform Civil Code

In Re Keshav Singh 1965

It could not be disputed that in the matters of privileges, the House was the sole and exclusive Judge provided such privilege could be found in Article 194(3). The question whether a privilege as claimed by the House was provided by Article 194(3) or not, was a matter for the Court to decide. The nature and scope of Article 194(3), was thus, to be determined by the Court. The Court also observed that such privileges were necessarily subject to Article 21 and 22 of the Constitution.

P.V Narsimha Rao v State 1998

The court held that those who took bribe but did not vote will be liable for prosecution under the Prevention of Corruption Act as they were not protected or entitled to the immunity under A. 105(2) of the Constitution, whereas those who voted will be protected even though they had taken bribes.

Swapnil Tripathi v Supreme Court of India 2018

Supreme Court allowed live-streaming of court proceedings

Shreya Singhal v UOI 2015

SC struck down Section 66A of the Information Technology Act, 2000, relating to restrictions on online speech, on grounds of violating the freedom of speech guaranteed under Article 19(1)(a) of the Constitution of India

Joseph Shine v UOI 2018

Section 497 (adultery) of the Indian Penal Code is a codified rule of patriarchy. The Bench held Section 198 (2) of the CrPC, which gives the husband the exclusive right to prosecute his wife's lover, manifestly arbitrary

K. Puttuswamy v UOI 2018

Upheld Aadhaar as a reasonable restriction on individual privacy. Upholding the passage of the Aadhaar Act as a Money Bill the majority opinion upheld the PAN-Aadhaar linkage, but declared linking Aadhaar with bank accounts and mobile SIM cards unconstitutional. The card was not necessary for children aged between six and 14 under the Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan as right to education was a fundamental right. Statutory bodies like CBSE and UGC cannot ask students to produce their Aadhaar cards for examinations like NEET and JEE. Section 57 of the Aadhaar Act was struck down as it was used by the government to compel private companies to demand Aadhaar verification for services.

Indian Young Lawyers Association v State of Kerala 2018

Exclusion of women from the temple of Lord Ayappa was a discriminatory practice which violates the freedom of religion of women devotees. Devotees of Lord Ayyappa do not constitute a separate religious denomination and the prohibition on women is not an essential part of Hindu religion. Also exclusion based on the notion of impurity (menstruation) is a form of untouchability

Navtej Johar v UOI

Exclusion of women from the temple of Lord Ayappa was a discriminatory practice which violates the freedom of religion of women devotees. Devotees of Lord Ayyappa do not constitute a separate religious denomination and the prohibition on women is not an essential part of Hindu religion. Also exclusion based on the notion of impurity (menstruation) is a form of untouchability an even platform, for the right to privacy and the protection of sexual orientation lies at the core of the fundamental rights guaranteed by Articles 14, 15 and 21 of the Constitution. Respect for individual choice is the very essence of liberty under law. Section 377 IPC assumes the characteristic of unreasonableness, for it becomes a weapon in the hands of the majority to seclude, exploit and harass the LGBT community

Olga Tellis v Bombay Municipal Corporation 1985

Right to livelihood is a facet of Article 21 of the Constitution

John Vallotam v UOI 1997

Court declared S.118 of the Indian Succession Act unconstitutional as violating of Article 14 of the Constitution. It restricted the right of a Christian having a nephew or niece or any other relative as regards his power to bequeath his property for religious or charitable purposes.

D.C Wadhwa v State of Bihar 1987

The power to make an ordinance is to meet an extraordinary situation and it should not be made to meet political ends of an individual. Re-promulgation from time to time is a subversion of the democratic process and a fraud on the Constitution. If Ordinance making was made a usual practice, creating an "Ordinance raj" the courts could strike down re-promulgated Ordinances.

Krishna Kumar Singh vs. State of Bihar 2017

The Court held that the requirement of placing the ordinance before the Legislature is mandatory. re-promulgation of ordinances is a fraud on the Constitution and a subversion of democratic legislative processes. The court also held that the satisfaction of the President under Article 123 and of the Governor under Article 213 while issuing ordinances is not immune from judicial review.

A.K Roy v UOI 1982

President's Ordinance making power is not beyond the scope of judicial review however the need to exercise judicial review over the President's decision arises only when there were substantial grounds to challenge the decision, and not at every casual and passing challenge?.

ADM Jabalpur v Shivkant Shukla 1976

The issue was whether an order issued by the President under Article 359(1) of the Constitution suspends the right of every person to move any Court for the enforcement of the right to personal liberty under Article 21 upon being detained under a law providing for. The court answered in the affirmative. Overruled in K Puttuswamy v UOI.

B.P Singhal v UOI 2010

The President, in effect the central government, has the power to remove a Governor at any time without giving him or her any reason, and without granting an opportunity to be heard. However, this power cannot be exercised in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. The power of removing Governors should only be exercised in rare and exceptional circumstances for valid and compelling reasons. The mere reason that a Governor is at variance with the policies and ideologies of the central government, or that the central government has lost confidence in him or her, is not sufficient to remove a Governor. Thus, a change in central government cannot be a ground for removal of Governors, or to appoint more favourable persons to this post. A decision to remove a Governor can be challenged in a court of law.

Society for Un-aided Private Schools of Rajasthan v. Union of India 2012

Every citizen has a right to establish and administer schools under Article 19(1)(g) so long as the activity remains charitable. Such an activity undertaken by private schools supplements the primary obligation of the State. The State can regulate by law the activities of private schools, including admission, by imposing reasonable restrictions in the public interest under Article 19(6) of the Constitution. The quota obligation imposed on private unaided non-minority schools is in the public interest and is a reasonable restriction for the purposes of Article 19(6). Therefore, the Right to Education Act shall apply to private unaided non-minority schools. Regarding unaided minority schools, Article 29(1) of the Constitution protects the right of minorities to conserve their language, script or culture, and Article 30(1) protects their right to establish and administer schools of their choice. Imposing a quota on such schools would result in changing their character and would therefore violate these minority rights. Therefore, the RTE Act shall not apply to unaided minority schools. Regarding government-aided minority schools, Article 29(2) of the Constitution protects every citizen's right of admission into a State-aided school. Accordingly, the RTE Act shall apply to aided minority schools.

Pramati Educational & Cultural Trust v UOI 2014

Society for Unaided Private Schools of Rajasthan v. Union of India & Anr. insofar as it holds that the 2009 Act is applicable to aided minority schools is overruled. Constitution (93rd Amendment) Act, 2005 inserting clause (5) of Article 15 of the Constitution and the Constitution (86th Amendment) Act, 2002 inserting Article 21A of the Constitution do not alter the basic structure or framework of the Constitution and are constitutionally valid. RTE Act is not ultra vires Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution.

S.R Bommai v UOI 1994

The SC laid down certain guidelines so as to prevent the misuse of Article 356 of the constitution. Based on the report of the Sarkaria Commission on Centre-state Relations(1988), the Supreme Court enlisted the situations where the exercise of power under Article 356 could be proper or improper. It also held that Secularism is one of the basic features of the Constitution. Secularism is a positive concept of equal treatment of all religions. Any State government which pursues nonsecular policies or nonsecular course of action acts contrary to the constitutional mandate and renders itself amenable to action under Article 356.

Ismail Faruqui v UOI 1995

The power of acquisition is the sovereign or prerogative power of the State to acquire property. Such power exists independent of Article 300A of the Constitution or the earlier Article 31 of the Constitution which merely indicate the limitations on the power of acquisition by the State. Such acquisition per se does not violate Articles 25 or 26 of the Constitution. What is protected under Articles 25 and 26 is a religious practice which forms an essential and integral part of religion. A practice may be a religious practice but not an essential part of religious practice. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof.

S.P. Mittal v UOI 1983

The words "religious denomination" in Article 26 of the Constitution must take their colour from the word 'religion' and if this be so, the expression "religious denomination" must also satisfy three conditions: (i) It must be a collection of individuals who has a system of beliefs or doctrine which they regard as conducive to their spiritual well-being, that is, a common faith; (ii) Common organisation; and (iii) Designation by a distinctive name.

The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Shri Lakshmindar Thirtha Swamiyar of Shri Shirur Mutt 1954

The Court, laid down the essential practice test. It observed what constitutes an essential part of a religion will be ascertained with reference to the tenets and doctrines of that religion itself. The essential religious practice test means that any religious practice which forms the basis or is so essential to that religion that it will fall within the protection of Article 25 and 26 should be protected as such. Any other activity not an essential practice does not require protection and will be covered in exceptions to the right to religion. There are certain exceptions which are given in the Constitution itself like economic, political, and financial or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice.

Selvi v State of Karnataka 2010

Court declared that three prominent police interrogation techniques narco-analysis, the lie-detector test, and brain-mapping - violated an accused person's right against self-incrimination under Article 20(3), and her right to life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution. A forcible administration of the above tests would be an unjustified intrusion into mental privacy and could lead to further stigma for the victim.

M.C. Mehta v UOI 1986

Laid down the concept of Public Liability and Absolute Liability.

Rural Litigation and Entitlement Kendra, Dehradun v State of Uttar Pradesh 1987

Laid down the concept of sustainable development

Indian Council for Enviro-Legal Action v Union of India 1999

Laid down Polluter Pays principle.

Court prohibited Jallikattu and other animal races and fights. Held that animal fights incited by humans are illegal, even those carried out under the guise of tradition and culture.

Subhash Kumar vs. State of Bihar 1991

Right to life includes the right of enjoyment of pollution free water and air for full enjoyment of life

D.K Basu v State of West Bengal 1997

Court laid down specific guidelines required to be followed by police while making arrests

Sheela Barse vs. State of Maharashtra 1983

Court laid down guidelines conferring protection to women prisoners in police lock ups

Prem Chand Garg v. Excise Commissioner, U.P. Allahabad 1963

The court held that an order which this Court can make in order to do complete justice under Article 142 between the parties, must not only be consistent with the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution, but it cannot even be inconsistent with the substantive provisions of the relevant statutory laws.

Union Carbide Corpn. v. Union of India 1991

The court held that prohibitions or limitations or provisions contained in ordinary law cannot, ipso facto, act as prohibitions or limitations on the constitutional powers under Article 142

Supreme Court Bar Assn. v. Union of India 1998

Court observed that powers under Article 142 cannot, in any way, be controlled by any statutory provisions but at the same time these powers are not meant to be exercised when their exercise may come directly in conflict with what has been expressly provided for in a statute dealing expressly with the subject. It was said that the said article could not be used to supplant the existing law, but only to supplement the law.

Subhash Mahajan v State of Maharashtra 2018

Court laid down guidelines to prevent abuse of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act 1989 (SC/ST Act). Held no absolute bar on anticipatory bail, arrest to be made after a preliminary inquiry, public servant cannot be arrested without prior sanction. Diluted by amendments made to the Act in 2018.

Govt. of NCT Delhi v UOI 2018

The Court held that Lieutenant Governor of NCT of Delhi is bound by the aid and advice of the elected Government of Delhi except in matters of land, police and public order. While holding so, the Court has observed that in a democracy, real power must vest in the elected representatives and Lt. Governor cannot interfere in every decision of the Delhi Government. The words 'any matter' employed in the proviso to clause (4) of Article 239AA cannot be inferred to mean 'every matter'.

Maru Ram v Union of India 1980

Court held that the power under Article 72 is to be exercised on the advice of the Central Government and not by the President on his own, and that the advice of the Government binds the head of the Republic.

Kehar Singh v Union of India 1989

The court laid down that the order of the President cannot be subjected to judicial review on its merits except within the strict limitations defined in Maru Ram

Epru Sudhakar v Govt of A.P. 2006

It is a well-set principle that a limited judicial review of exercise of clemency powers is available to the Supreme Court and High Courts. Granting of clemency by the President or Governor can be challenged on the following grounds: The order has been passed without application of mind. The order is mala fide. The order has been passed on extraneous or wholly irrelevant considerations. Relevant material has been kept out of consideration. The order suffers from arbitrariness

Triveniben v State of Gujarat 1989

An undue long delay in execution of the sentence would entitle the convict to approach the Supreme Court under Article 32 or the High Court under Article 226 and get his sentence commuted.

Shatrughan Chauhan v UOI 2014

The court observed that an inordinate and inexplicable delay in execution would preclude carrying out the sentence even in cases where the convict in question had committed an offence of terrorism. Overruled Devender Singh Bhullar v. State of NCT Delhi 2013 which had ruled that a delay in disposing of a mercy petition was, by itself, insufficient ground for commuting the sentence of those convicted to death under anti-terrorism statutes.

Union of India v. Tulshiram Patel 1985

The Court held that the dismissal, removal or reduction in rank of a person convicted on criminal charges is in public interest, and therefore not violative of Art. 311(2) or Article 14 of the Constitution

Parshottam Lal Dhingra v. Union of India 1957

Article 311 is available only when 'dismissal, removal, reduction in rank is by way of punishment.' So it is difficult to determine as to when an order of termination of service or reduction in rank amounts to punishment. The Supreme Court laid down 2 tests to determine when termination is by way of punishment - Whether the servant had a right to hold the post or the rank? Whether he has been visited with evil consequences? If a government servant had a right to hold the post or rank under the terms of any contract of service, or under any rule, governing the service, then the termination of his service or reduction in rank amounts to a punishment and he will be entitled to protection under Article 311. Articles 310 and 311 apply to Government servants, whether permanent, temporary, officiating or on probation. The procedure laid down in Article 311 is intended to assure, first, a measure of tenure to government servants, who are covered by the Article and secondly to provide certain safeguards against arbitrary dismissal or removal of a government servant or reduction to a lower rank.

Union of India v. Balbir Singh 1998

The Supreme Court held that the Court can examine the circumstances on which the satisfaction of the President or Governor is taken under proviso to Article 311(2). If the Court finds that the circumstances have no bearing whatsoever on the security of State, the Court can hold that satisfaction of the President or the Governor which is required for passing such an order has been vitiated by wholly extraneous or irrelevant considerations.

Campaign for Judicial Accountability and Reforms v. Union of India 2017

Chief Justice is the master of the roster. Followed the ratio of State of Rajasthan v. Prakash Chand (1998).
